PAVING STILL ALL THE TALK

Tonight's Meeting of the Pittston Council May Be Interesting.

THAT OLD ASPHALT CONTRACT

It Was Evidently Drawn Up by an Expert—Does It Mean a Concrete Foundation or Does It Not—Citizens, in Any Event, Will Protest Against It and an Investigation Is Quite Certain.

Special to the Scranton Tribune. PITTSBOS, Pa., Sept. 16. THE meeting of the town council which takes place this evening promises to be a memorable one in the history of Pittston. The statements of corruption which have been spread broadcast since the meeting last Thursday night have worked the citizens up a high pitch of excitement and an interesting time is looked for. It is understood a large number of citizens propose to go before the council and to know their indignation which has been caused by the awarding of the contract to pave with asphalt.

It might be well to call the attention of the public to the fact that the paving to be done by the Barber Asphalt Paving company under their bid will not be laid on a concrete foundation, as many have the opinion, but on a cobble stone foundation. At least this would seem to be the meaning of the wording of their bid, which is as follows: "We will pave Main and Water streets a pure yard for the sum of $2.31 per cubic yard for cobble stone foundation." In this bid there is no reference to any concrete in connection with the pave except as follows: "For cobblestone on streets to be used in concrete we will pay the sum of 60 cents per cubic yard." Inasmuch as the Barber company's bid makes no reference to any use of concrete it would seem as though there were some very sharp practice in the wording of this bid and that the Barber company had in contemplation to use the present cobblestone without making any allowance therefor, as might be remarked in passing that if the Barber company's bid contemplates purchasing the cobblestone now forming the pave on Main street at the rate of 60 cents per cubic yard the bargain is a mighty good one, so far as the paving company is concerned, as a cubic yard of cobble will make over a wagon load of stone for which the ordinary price, to gather and deliver is $1.

UNGRATEFUL REFORMERS.

Benjamin Harding, head of the advisory committee that since last spring, has spent wakeful nights in seeking to guide the wobbly footsteps of Pittston's reform councilmen, is thoroughly disgusted with the action of his reform children in council. Instead of listening to and following the advice of the advisory committee these ingrates who owe their being to the heroic efforts of Harding and his fellow workers in the cause of reform turn upon their makers and benefactors and give them a drubbing that will compel the advisory committee to figuratively take its meals standing for the balance of its existence. The dear old Gazette, which throughout this whole paving agitation, has perched seraphically on the fence, comes down now to the extent of misrepresenting the facts which have been made. The Gazette is too good-hearted to believe that anybody in this rough world would invade the sanctity of Pittston politics to the extent of offering a councilman a stronger inducement than red lemonade of the Sunday school picnic degree of harmlessness. We do not find in us to take umbrage at anything the Gazette may choose to say of THE TRIBUNE. We give it carte blanche to make as may gentle animadversions upon us as it shall desire, confident, all the while, that what it may, at intervals, remark will not alter the facts.

Priceburg. There is quite a rivalry existing between the slate-pickers employed at Storrs' breaker and those employed at Richmond's. During the noon recess they gather in battle array on the elm stump which are opposite and overlooking the main street and there commence to throw rocks at each other, endangering passersby and adjoining property. The boys from Storrs' have been the aggressors the past few days and complaints have been made Superintendent Bowman, who intends to put a stop to such foolish work. R. L. VELVETEENS AND VELVETS. A Dazzling Display and Prices to Suit a Short Purse. Conducy in the regulation heaver, gray and brown shades has reappeared this season, while velveteens and velvets are really beautiful in their texture. They are much more serviceable for ordinary wear than velvet, being unaffected by water, and are wider and far less costly, but these virtues are not sufficient to relegate them to a despised position in the wardrobe. Velvet is often combined with fine wool goods in imported street gowns and is frequently embroidered in patterns for trimming purposes. Besides the plain varieties sold by the yard there are a number displayed having tiny silk embroidered dots or flecks in contrasting color. There is also a kind having narrow ribs in two tones, which catch the light with a change-

Jermyn. The proceeds of the chicken supper under the auspices of the ladies of the First Baptist church Wednesday evening will be used to help liquidate the church debt. James Collins, who has been in Chicago for a number of months, returned home Saturday. The Silver Lake quartette will give a concert in the Methodist Episcopal church basement on Wednesday, Oct. 3. Admission free. Crystal Fire company will hold a fair in Enterprise hall in October. There will be a district convention of Epworth league workers on Oct. 9 in the Methodist Episcopal church. A number of the friends of James Nicholson spent Friday evening very pleasantly at his home on Second street. Mrs. Calvin Vail spent Sunday at Clifford. Saturday evening the Jermyn Citizens' band gave an open air concert on A. F. Gebhardt's lawn. The following programs were rendered: March, "Mayflower"; G. D. Sherman, overture, "El Dorado"; H. Round; cornet solo, selected; medley overture, "Up to Date"; L. O. De Witt; overture, "Laurel Wreath"; W. S. Ripley; trombone solo, "B-l-u-e-v-e Polka"; Thomas Donaghy; "Colored Polka"; H. B. L. P. Larned; waltz, "Valse of Ferns"; H. Round; March, "Camp Douglas"; C. H. Bohan. Yesterday Rev. J. D. Williams of Peckville, conducted services in the Methodist church. Mrs. W. S. Spencer of Carbondale, called on Jermyn friends Saturday.

VELVET AND SILK COSTUME. The more subdued shades for gowns and dress trimmings, cherry, turquoise, lavender and all the brilliant and delicate tints now fashionable in silk velvets may be obtained in velveteen, although for what purpose these light colors are utilized it would be hard to guess, since there is an insurmountable prejudice against using velveteen in millinery. As for velvets, the display is dazzling. Cherry, bright green and purple stand forth in fashionable prominence, a twist or knot of one of these colors being a favorite ornament of hats and bonnets. Prices this year are exceptionally low, and brilliant shades, which are usually more costly than dark ones, are now sold at the same valuation. Silk plushes have also come down surprisingly, fine qualities being offered at less than half the former price. Since china silks came into such universal popularity silk has retired into the background, being used mainly for linings, and even for that purpose being often superseded by glass changeable silks. It seems to be regaining favor, however, as it is seen in many of the new Parisian designs. Gown evening gowns are often made up over underdress of surah, and it is now beginning to form a part of more elaborate costumes. A sketch is given of a gown the skirt of which is of accordion plaited surah, Russian green in color. A second skirt of velvet of the same shade falls over the skirt, and is caught up on the left side by a rosset of ivory silk crape. A gathered belt of crepon surrounds the waist of the tight velvet bodice, the upper part of which is covered with a puffed drapery of crepon bordered on the lower edge by an accordion plaited frill of surah. Similar effects are seen over the shoulders, forming epaulettes at the top of the balloon sleeves of crepon. A wrinkle crepon collar finishes the neck. JERICHO CHOLER.
